Hospitality Students Intern in Hawaii

Amanda Bennett (left) and Lasidi Helmick met while enrolled in the Hospitality and Tourism Program at Potomac State College. They soon became fast-friends as they peeled, poached, braised, and cooked their way through exotic dishes, so it's no surprise that they decided to do their internship together at the world-renowned Ritz-Carlton, Kapalua, in Maui, Hawaii.

Bennett and Helmick began their internships in May 2012. Some of their duties included catering weddings, food, wine tastings and various other events. When asked, "Why Hawaii?" Bennett replied, "We didn't need a passport to get there and – why not? It's Hawaii!"

Bennett worked as a garde manger chef and according to gardemanger.com, "Garde Manger is considered by many to be the most demanding station/job in any kitchen. Garde Mangers need to be able to apply proper seasoning to food that is going to be served cold, and in other cases, season food that is going to be served hot. Many chefs have the ability to season hot food, but lack the ability to season both correctly."

"It was a little overwhelming when I first arrived," said Bennett, "but Chef Thomas' classes really prepared me for the fast-paced work the Ritz-Carlton had me doing."

Helmick returned home after completing her internship; however, Bennett was offered and accepted full-time employment in Hawaii. "I would encourage other students in the hospitality field to do their internships at a location they would like to explore and possibly live someday," said Bennett.

Creators of McNeill's Rangers Reunite

McNeill's Rangers is an original musical production by PSC Music Professor John Hawkins, Ph.D. and Vana Nespor, Ph.D. who serves as the Dean of the School of Professional and Adult Studies at Bay Path College in Longmeadow, Mass.

While spending time in the Petersburg and Keyser, W.Va. areas, Dr. Nespor began researching the history behind McNeill's Rangers to discover their connection to the local area during the time of the Civil War. Her research culminated in a book and lyrics, with music composed by Dr. Hawkins.

"I was struck by the humor, love, honor, and pain of the stories surrounding McNeill's Rangers and between those who fought with and against the Rangers. I wondered how people found it in their hearts to forgive and embrace those who had hurt them so deeply. I came to believe that it is when we have the ability to come together to honor and rejoice in our stories that we are able to rise above our pain and embrace a new future full of possibilities," said Dr. Nespor.

The musical was first performed in 1984 in conjunction with Apple Alley Players. It was performed at the College for the first time this spring.

McNeill's Rangers is set 25 years after the Civil War has ended. A reunion has been planned for aging ex-Confederate and Union soldiers which makes for an interesting get-together with a rehashing of events leading up to the death of Captain John Hanson, who served as the original leader of McNeill's Rangers. Comic relief is provided as well with the antics of Otis, who likes his corn liquor a little too much, and his wife, Gertie, who tries to keep her rascal of a husband under control.

"Food, fun, song, and reconciliation are the themes that wander their way throughout the production; however, at the heart of McNeill's Rangers is a clearing of the air, burying the hatchet and reconciliation," said Dr. Hawkins.

Class of 1953 Celebrates 60 Years

A note from Classmates Dolly Cox and Richard Cardot

Since we'll be celebrating our 60th reunion this year, we would like to see as many alumni as possible attend Homecoming 2013 on October 12 this fall. Several events are being planned for your enjoyment. On Friday, October 11 there will be a '50s Get Together of all alumni who attended Potomac State during that time period. On Saturday morning a brunch and recognition of those who graduated 50, 25 and 10 years ago will be held and there is usually some type of athletic event Saturday afternoon. The culmination of the weekend is the Homecoming Banquet where the achievements of alumni are recognized. Of course, Homecoming is a celebration of all alumni but we especially encourage all graduates of the Class of 1953 to attend – we would love to see all of you and catch up with one another. See you in the fall!

Faculty Made a Difference, Alumni Asked to "Pay it Forward"

For many years, Dr. Elizabeth Atwater was known for making extra efforts to help students who were finding college life to be very challenging even if they weren't in her classes. One student, Al Barbano '65, had many sessions with her during his first semester, and he credits her with helping him to give college life his best effort.

"I was a city kid from North Jersey and had a tough time getting into college at all. At first, I just wanted to quit, but Dr. Atwater had long talks with me about my future. She'd give me assignments for our next meeting and by the end of the sixth week, I had actually come to enjoy school work and life in Keyser," recalled Al.

With conviction, Al said, "I shall never forget Potomac State and especially Dr. Atwater. I am so grateful and want to help others when they're at Potomac State. To do that, I've included a gift in my will." Many feel as Al does about Potomac State and want to assure that more students benefit as they have. A gift provision in their will or revocable trust that uses the wording of "to the WVU Foundation (FEIN 55-6017181) for the benefit of Potomac State College of WVU" is a good way to make that happen.

"My career was in engineering sales and recruiting for 35 years. I traveled all over the U.S.A. for my work and sometimes my wife Irene came along," said Al. "I know my career successes wouldn't have happened if Dr. Atwater hadn't reached out to save me from going backwards to nothing. She helped me more than she'll ever know and that's why I want to pay it forward."
